NEXT STORM WAVE.

Due to Leave the Pacific Coast on July 29 Next.

NO ESPECIAL DEVELOPMENTS.

Our Mr. Foster Gives Some Timely Tips to Farmers and Stock Raisers—Classes in Meteorology—Weather and Science Notes.

Special to the Gazette.

SA. JOSEPH, Mo., July 25.—My last letter gave forecasts of the storm wave due to cross the continent from the Pacific to the Atlantic from the 24th to the 28th. The next will be due to leave the Pacific coast about the 24th, cross the Rocky-Allegheny valley from 24th to August 1, and reach the Atlantic coast about the 24th. This storm will probably develop no special features beyond what may be expected from the fact that we now have fairly entered the great storm period of 1892-93, and therefore all storm waves will possess more than average energy. Rain will not be so general, but will incline toward heavy rainfalls in humid localities and local droughts in other places. A large corn crop is assured in the corn belt of the Mississippi valley, but the cotton crop has some serious difficulties yet to contend with. Farmers should manage their work so as to crop their corn early, or otherwise they will lose much of it by a very early winter and great snow storms. Farm stock will need unusual care very early in the winter, and the winter will average very cold throughout. The winter, with sudden changes and storms that will be of great injury to stock not carefully sheltered. The cotton states will miss it if they count on 7,000,000 bales, and they should push their cotton picking early in the season. As tornadoes are expected to be frequent during the next three months I will repeat that these tornadoes do not usually occur on the regular storm wave dates. They generally occur in advance of the storm centers.

CLASSES IN METEOROLOGY.
I will give special instructions in meteorology to all persons who are interested in this paper in which my weekly letters are regularly published. It will be necessary for each person to have copies of my published letters. To understand planetary meteorology the astronomy of the solar system must be understood. The astronomy taught in our schools takes the elliptic, or the earth's orbit, as the basis from which to calculate, and this is like beginning the study of arithmetic in decimal fractions. I take the sun's equator as the basis from which to calculate, and by this means the solar system and the relations of the planets to each other are much more easily understood. Astronomy as taught in our schools is adapted to surveying and navigation, but not to planetary meteorology. To individuals, clubs and societies that desire to study or discuss planetary meteorology I will furnish diagrams once a week and give special instructions which, with the letters published in this paper, will enable anyone to calculate the future of the weather from the standpoint of planetary meteorology. Parties interested in this matter will please correspond with me. This will give to literary and scientific societies a new feature for their winter and summer meetings, and the expense will be so small that individuals may well afford to engage in the study alone.

WEATHER AND SCIENCE NOTES.

Our cold winters are caused by the eastward oscillation of the North Atlantic permanent high barometer, therefore when we have cold winters in the Mississippi valley the winters are warm in Europe. This North Atlantic high barometer controls the routes of our storm centers, and the tropical hurricanes and these control the cold waves. When that high barometer swings eastward our storm centers take southern routes, and when it swings westward they take northern routes, and when it swings eastward our storm centers take northern routes, and when it swings westward they take southern routes. The oscillations of the North Atlantic permanent high barometer is indispensable to correct forecasts of the weather on this continent and Europe and the weather bureau of the United States and Europe should give this matter careful attention. If we had a correct record of the weather of the Bermudas, the Azores, the West Indies and the Windward Islands and a ship signal station between the Bermudas and the Azores we would be in possession of the means by which we could calculate the periods of hurricanes and give warning of their approach. In order to forecast the weather the weather bureau is looking toward the Northwest, where the cause of these cold waves is to be found in the opposite direction. Cold waves and hurricanes are matters of great importance to the United States and should have more practical investigation by the weather bureau. Such investigations are too expensive for independent meteorologists to undertake. In this matter of the oscillations of the North Atlantic high barometer, Europe is as much interested as is North America, and the expense should be shared by both. A correct forecast of cold waves and hurricanes, early springs, late and early frosts on both continents and our tropical hurricanes depends on a better knowledge of this North Atlantic permanent high barometer. In other respects the weather record is good, but in this it is seriously deficient.

Family Reunions in Ephraim County.

Correspondence of the Gazette.

GILMER, EPHRAIM COUNTY, TEX., July 23.—

Family reunions on an extensive scale are getting to be quite the thing in Gilmer. On Tuesday of this week pursuant to an agreement made last year all the relatives, both near and remote, of the Gilmer families, having for their heads G. Christian and J. R. Christian of this place, met at Merrill's Lake about fifteen miles southeast of here, to spend a week hunting, fishing and having a good time. The party numbers about 100 souls, and is composed of people from all over our state, and a few from the old states. The object of the gathering is to become better acquainted and at the same time have a week's recreation. At the close of the reunion a vote is taken as to the time and place of next meeting. Mr. T. C. Morgan of Hubbard City is business manager.

At Phillips Springs, about twelve miles south of here (which, by the way is acquiring quite a reputation as a pleasure and health resort), another reunion has been in progress this week. It is a gathering of the relatives of W. Boyd, Sr., of this place. They numbered nearly two hundred and came from all portions of the state. There is a good hotel at the springs, and in addition the party was provided with tents, and all the paraphernalia necessary to camping out. A substantial platform has been erected for dancing, and the programme of a barbecue every day and dancing every day and night was faithfully carried out. On Tuesday a large crowd went from Gilmer to participate, and on Tuesday night the ball was largely attended by young people from Lawrence, Mineola and Gilmer. These gatherings will be repeated each year.

The Story Discredited.

New York, July 25.—Commodore Irving of the Brooklyn navy yard has received a letter from Admiral McCann, dated Caliao, July 6, which discredits the story that the steam launch Pensacola was sunk and five of the crew of nine killed by a torpedo from the Albatross cruiser Cordell. He says Admiral McCann would certainly have made mention of such an occurrence had it taken place as reported.

CONVICTIONS AT RUSK.

The Criminal Docket Including a Number of Celebrated Cases Disposed of—Walter Freeman Given Six Years.

Correspondence of the Gazette.

RUSK, CHEROKEE COUNTY, TEX., July 24.—

The district court disposed of its criminal docket to-day by convicting John Felder, colored, and giving him two years in the penitentiary for assault to murder.

Two negro women were given three years each day before yesterday for burglary.

The celebrated Conney case was also finally disposed of this week. A lengthy motion for a new trial was considered by the court and overruled, and the defendant gave notice of appeal, but came in yesterday and withdrew the notice of appeal and took his sentence and was carried to the penitentiary.

One of the most interesting and important cases tried at this term was also disposed of this week. About a year ago the county was shocked by the news of the murder of Riley Williamson, a convict guard at the coal camp sixteen miles south of here, and the escape of eighteen convicts. A guard by the name of Walter Freeman left camp under suspicious circumstances the day before the murder and from various facts and circumstances it was surmised that he had, in some way, aided the convicts in obtaining the arms with which Williamson was killed by his own men (convicts). Freeman was intercepted and arrested at Little Rock, and a quantity of letters were found in his baggy from convicts on the subject of his rendering them aid in making their escape. Freeman was indicted by the grand jury for murder and conspiracy to murder, and was placed under bond in the sum of $500. His father, a well-to-do business man of Kentucky, came here and got the bank to make his son's bond. Some time afterward Freeman fled the country and judgment was taken against his surties, and at this time of the court the judgment was made final and the money was paid over. A very short time afterward Freeman was arrested in Kentucky and brought here for trial. He was ably represented by attorneys here and from Kentucky and was given six years for murder in the second degree, and took his sentence, which is considered light in view of the terrible results following from his aiding the convicts to the extent of furnishing them the arms, which he no doubt did directly or indirectly. The evidence, however, convinced all that there were, no doubt, others besides Freeman in the conspiracy, and perhaps, more deeply interested than Freeman was in a more boy, and more indomitable may yet follow.

In the county court yesterday, G. C. Bowlin, an ex-convict, was adjudged insane. Bowlin was sent from Tarrant county for five years. His time expired July 12, and he had refused to go anywhere, but wandered about town alarming the women and children until it was deemed necessary, for his own safety as well as that of others, to place him under restraint. He will be sent to Terrell.
